

REGULAR COUNCIL MEETING
May 6th, 2026

Public Utilities Committee @ 6:50pm

The first monthly meeting of Mansfield City Council met on Wednesday, May 6th, 2026 at 7:37pm in the Council Chambers of the City Municipal Building.

The Pledge of Allegiance was recited by the audience.

David Falquette led the audience in prayer.

ROLL CALL: The following answered were present at roll call: Miranda, Meier, Davis-Weese, Daley, Diaz, Mount, Robertson, Falquette, and Scott.

There being no objections, the reading of the Journal and Correspondence was dispensed with.

PUBLIC COMMENTS:

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: OK, moved right through that. With that, is there anyone that wishes to sign up for public comment? I know we have one, so if you want to come on up to the microphone there. Gwendolyn.

GWENDOLYN STADELMAN: Yes.

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: Stadelman? Stadelman? I got it.

GWENDOLYN STADELMAN: I'm starting to feel like we're becoming friends.

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: OK, but I still need you to give your name and address, please.

GWENDOLYN STADELMAN: Absolutely.

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: And once again, a reminder of three minutes.

GWENDOLYN STADELMAN: Correct. Gwendolyn Stadelman, 1360 Royal Oak Drive. Sorry, old eyes. The reason I'm here is there eventually will be a vote on zoning for the Bucky's property. And I wanted to step up in advance before you actually do it. So, I have a few things I want to share with you. As of 2026, there are approximately 74,000 farmers in Ohio. Of those 74,000, the average age is 56.3 years old. Ohio farms have had and seen a decline of approximately 2.4% of farms in 2023 and 2024, continuing a long trend of decreasing farm numbers year over year. With the decline, Ohio is seeing the biggest trend of middle-sized farms disappearing. About 65% of Ohio farms are less than 100 acres, specializing in crops such as corn, soybeans, and hay. Many of these small farms have primary occupations other than farming. Agriculture is Ohio's top industry, producing $9.3 billion in agricultural products annually. In Richland County, small farms under 50 acres make up about 51% of all the operations in the county. In this county, agricultural is diverse, but heavily focused on grain and poultry.

The county's net cash farm income saw a massive 121% increase between the years 2017 and 2022, reaching over $83 million. Lease farming is part of a steady upward trend in north-central Ohio as production costs and land values rise. Richland County sees a significant amount of leased farm land annually, where the farmer owns some of the land and rents additional acreage to expand their farming operations. Ohio Farm Bureau shows that roughly 40% of all Ohio farmland is rented rather than owned by the operator or farmer. Benefits of the leased land for landowners. Steady incomes without needing to manage farm operations. Property maintenance. The tenant maintains or improves the leased land, boosting its value. Benefits for farmers. Lower capital requirement. It enables the farmer to use specialized equipment to assist and aid in farming the land. Financial flexibility. Leased land allows testing new products, new ways of farming that are more beneficial to the land itself. It also reduces long-term risks with the financial flexibility. Shared investments. Opportunities for long-term lease arrangements. Farm size breakdown. Small farms are approximately under 50 acres.

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: Three minutes.

GWENDOLYN STADELMAN: Is it done?

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: You've got three, but you can wrap it up quickly.

GWENDOLYN STADELMAN: OK. Basically, what I want to tell you is Mr. Stadelman is a large-sized farmer in Ohio. He has a small plot that will be next to Buc-ee's. That's his base. However, when you break it down, small farms are under 50 acres. Medium farms are 50 to 500. 500 acres to 1,000 or larger is a large farm. Mr. Stadelman is a large farmer. He just chooses to lease the farmland, which is financially more respectable to his pocket. The reason I gave you all of those statistics is because I wanted you to be aware of that. I've seen the map. I understand what is the intent to put in three roundabouts. And I have to say that I'm highly disappointed that these roundabouts are going to take the end of his driveway away. And he is going to be driving through traffic of going to Bucky's, which is going to not only put himself at risk, but is also going to put the patrons of Bucky's at risk. Because these people are going to be excited. They're going to be looking. Oh, look at where we're going to. They want to go. I'm not adverse to this building, but I am averse to seeing the end of his driveway being removed and him becoming a sacrificial, as I call it, sacrificial lamb to Bucky's. I think there needs to be a little give and take with what is happening. For Mr. Stadelman, who is a long-term resident of Richland County, and also some leeway, too, with Bucky's, as well. So, I ask that you consider what I've told you, just for future reference. I thank you for your time.

COMMITTEE REPORTS:

No Committee Reports

PRESIDENT PHIL SCOTT: OK. With that, are there any other committee reports? Mayor, I believe you had another proclamation now.

MAYOR JODIE PERRY: Wait, there's more. Well, this is also Building Safety Month. We do have our Director of Permitting and Development, Adrienne Ackerman, here tonight. And we decided that this has been celebrated for many years, but it's kind of our first time acknowledging it. With all the work that we've done under her leadership, of course, last year, passing the International Property Maintenance Code and that, that this was a good time to remind people that they should be doing things properly, coming in, getting their permits, getting things walked through. Let me read through this a little quickly here. Mansfield, Ohio is committed to recognizing our growth and strength depend on the safety and essential role in our homes, buildings, and infrastructure, both in everyday life and when disasters strike.

Our confidence in the resilience of these buildings that make up our community is achieved through the devotion of vigilant guardians, the building safety and fire prevention officials, architects, engineers, builders, tradespeople, design professionals, laborers, plumbers, and others in the construction industry who work year-round to ensure the safe construction of buildings. And these guardians are dedicated members of the International Code Council, or ICC, a nonprofit that brings together local, state, territorial, tribal, and federal officials who are experts in the built environment to create and implement the highest quality codes and standards to protect us in the buildings where we live, learn, work, and play. These modern building codes and standards include safeguards to protect the public from hazards such as hurricanes, snowstorms, tornadoes, wildland fires, floods, and earthquakes. ICC sponsors Building Safety Month to remind the public about the critical role of our community's largely unknown protectors of public safety, the code officials, who assure us of safe, sustainable, and affordable buildings that are essential to our prosperity. Built to Last is the theme for Building Safety Month of 2026 and encourages us all to get involved and raise awareness about building safety on a personal, local, and global scale. And each year in observance of Building Safety Month, people all over the world are asked to consider the commitment to improve building safety, resilience, and economic investment at home and in the community, and to acknowledge the essential service provided by all of these people. Now, therefore, I, Jodie A. Perry, Mayor of the City of Mansfield, do hereby proclaim May 2026 as Building Safety Month. So, with that, if you want to come up and add anything, and I'll come down and, yes, one more picture.

ADRIENNE ACKERMAN: Passing around a packet of flyers just so everyone can watch for those to come, but. Good evening, thank you, Mayor, for the proclamation recognizing Building Safety Month. I believe this is the first time we are formally recognizing it. Building Safety Month and building safety is something that plays such a critical role in our community every single day. Building Safety Month's an annual public awareness campaign led by ICC, and it's the leading global source of our model codes and standards. When most people think about safety in our neighborhoods and codes, we immediately think of vacant or condemned structures, properties that need to be demolished. Building safety is really about the spaces that we use every single day. It's the wiring in our homes. It's the strength of a porch or a roof that keeps a family safe. It's safe exits in buildings, and it's ensuring that everyone's protected in the places they live, work, and visit. Success in building safety's invisible. It's when nothing goes wrong. It's when systems and structures work the way they're supposed to, and people are safe without even having to think about it. Too often, we focus on reacting to problems, dangerous structures, emergency situations, and code violations, but building safety, at its core, is about prevention. It's about making sure that those problems never happen in the first place. Building Safety Month is also important because it helps move the conversation from reactive to proactive, and it helps educate the public about the role that we play in maintaining safe buildings and homes. So, in your flyers, you'll see that there's a flyer. There's a theme for each week in Building Safety Month. The first week is called Safe Homes, Strong Communities, and it focuses on stability and strong neighborhoods. Week two is Voices of the Built Environment, and it focuses on the professionals who work diligently to ensure safety in all these structures. Week three is Prepared to Protect, and it focuses on preparation and planning to prevent emergencies. And then week four is Communities Without Limits, which focuses on accessibility in buildings so that everyone can fully enjoy their use. Our permitting and development team and fire prevention are engaged in this work every single day, and much of it happens behind the scenes, reviewing plans, conducting inspections, and ensuring compliance, but it has a direct impact on the safety and stability of our neighborhoods. The proclamation's important because it brings visibility to that work. Building safety's not just about structures, it's about people. It's about protecting lives, preserving property, and supporting a stronger community, and I hope this is the first step towards local public education about the work that we do. Thank you.

MAYOR JODIE PERRY: Yeah, sorry. I do wanna just add real quick a couple things. So, we did the State of the City last week. I just wanna make sure that everyone has a chance to see the video year-end recap of the five-minute 2025 recap. So, if you haven't seen it, it's on the website. It's on Facebook. I think DRM did a great job. And there was a lot that happened last year. So again, I might've been the one narrating it, but it is the work of everyone in this building and all of our outbuildings. And I just would like to say that I continue to have more people coming up and just saying how encouraged they are by the things that are happening in the community. I hear that in the building as well on an increasing basis. So, I think we're headed in the right direction. Number two, we did finally sign our blue and gold police contracts this week. So, we are officially done with this administration's first round of union contracts. Yay. Appreciate Detective Coffman and Lieutenant Grimshaw for heading up both of those units and all the work that they do. And I did wanna give you a preview. We have had almost 2,000 responses to the pool survey. So yes, I said, well, if there's one thing we're not short of in Mansfield, it is opinion. So, it's great. We love it. And actually, our consultant just by the way said he had done this in a recent community, similar size. They had not even 200. So, but it has generated robust conversation internally with the steering committee. We are gonna be coming back with a public survey again with some options. So be on the lookout for that. Of course, we'll put a press release out and launch it at council. But I know some folks have asked and it's exciting and expensive. So, stay tuned.

DIRECTOR LOUIE ANDRES: Nothing further.
